Bad Prairie Fires During Past Week

Several Thousand Acres of Pasture Burned Over.

During the past week there were two bad prairie fires in the districts surrounding the town and owing to the high winds blowing at the time they spread rapidly covering a large territory and destroying several thousand acres of good pasture.

The first one started on the old Wedderburn farm at Harvest Vale. It spread in a northeasterly direction and took in everything before it. Some small buildings on the F. Schram farm are reported to have been demolished.

On Monday of this week a second fire started on the farm of E. T. Lapp and was carried in all directions by the wind. Provincial police were called and after securing trucks, men and fire fighting apparatus from town proceeded to the fire. They were fortunate in getting the fire out but not before it had burned over a patch of the pasture four or five miles long.

Pasture and fences on Jno. Snider's farm, (the old J. Haalen farm) were completely destroyed. Fortunately in neither of these fires no homes, barns, stacks or cattle were burned.

These fires should serve as an additional warning to all that the greatest care and precaution should be taken before starting fires to burn rubbish or stubble. Last fall whole towns were destroyed and thousands of acres of good pasture ruined by just such carelessness.

Concord is Reached by Britain and France

Hopes of a Five Power Pact are Now Revised

Agreement between Great Britain and France upon questions of security in Europe, as indicated by Foreign Minister Briand after his conference with Prime Minister MacDonald, will permit the London Naval negotiations to continue with a five-power disarmament treaty as the goal.

Whether a five power agreement is really any nearer realization could not be determined however, in view of the very brief and restrained official announcement made by the conference of their chiefs.

Briand, returning to the Carlton after his interview, declared to the French journalists that there now was agreement between the British and French regarding interpretation of Article XVI of the League of Nations covenant. This is the article which deals with measures to be taken should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under league articles, and its interpretation has been a moot topic here.

Mr. Fallis inspector of clubs and beer parlors was in town this week on a tour of inspection.

Negotiations between Naval delegations yesterday practically assured the signing of a tripartite naval treaty between Great Britain, United States and Japan and, on the other hand, almost completely dashed the hopes of those who looked for a five-power pact of limitation.

Former Redcliff Boy Dies at Seattle

Six Year Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dubeau

Last week word was received in town announcing the death of George Herbert, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dubeau, of Seattle, but formerly of Redcliff and district.

It appears the little fellow got some poisonous substance, either berries or drugs, into his system. When he became ill doctors were called and after treatment for a week an operation was performed. The child died while undergoing the operation but it was found his intestines were badly knotted from the poison.

Little George was a bright lad. He was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Dubeau to whom is extended the heart-felt sympathy of their many friends here.

Sale of School Lands Brings Good Price

Average for this District was $25.50 Per Acre.

That the Southeastern section of Alberta is staging a comeback has been further shown in the recent school land sales held throughout the territory. Out of six sales, Taber, Foremost and Medicine Hat were far ahead of Lethbridge and Macleod or may be further shown in the interest manifest and in sales made. Taber led all with a total of $73,713 worth of land being sold.

The sales in the southern territory were conducted under the direction of E. F. Layton, Dominion lands agent for Lethbridge. In his summary on the business conducted at all the sales in the south, Mr. Layton states that a total of $19,475,952 was realized for all the land sold. A total of 124 parcels of land were purchased comprising 178,235 acres. The sales at Taber showed the highest average price $26.00 being recorded although Medicine Hat was a close second with $25.50. The sales in the eastern territory were well attended and bidding brisk, for the choice parcels offered. Mr. Layton expressed himself as well satisfied with the results.

GRAND OFFICERS AT S. O. E. LODGE

A special meeting of the local S. O. E. lodge was held last Saturday evening for the purpose of meeting Grand Lodge officials who were in this district. Grand officers present were Mr. Friend G. V. P. R. B. Gale, Supreme Lodge officer and H. J. Noble, Grand secretary.

Interesting and instructive addresses were given by the visitors and a pleasant social hour was spent.

MAY FORM TILLEY AREA INTO MUNICIPAL DISTRICT

There is now a suggestion of the possibility of forming the whole Tilley East Area into municipal district with a municipal council to run its affairs and solve its problems.

The suggestion is also made that if a municipality district is to be formed why not also form it into one school district so that when the new school act becomes law this district would be in a better position to take advantage of the provisions of the act.

Social Evening for Young Entertainers

Held at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Hargrave Friday.

Last Friday Evening the Ladies of the Entertainment committee of Gordon Memorial L. A. entertained the young people who took part in the St. Patrick's Concert. All were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hargrave where a jolly evening was spent. Games of various kinds were played and these were interspersed with guessing competitions. Maria were awarded for each competition and at the close these were counted up and prizes given to the boys and girls making the highest scores. The prizes were won by Stella McCleary and Sam McCleary.

Prizes were also given to the girls who sold the most tickets for the concert. These were won by Evelyn Cook and Eva Beattie.

After the games a dainty lunch was served and before singing the National anthem a jolly hour spent singing rousing choruses was spent.

A motion by Bill Yates and Bill McCleary thanking the ladies for the most enjoyable evening was unanimously carried and led to a prolonged applause.

TWO GENERAL ELECTIONS POSSIBLE THIS YEAR

Although neither Premier King or Premier Bowness have made any definite statement yet the general opinion at both Ottawa and Edmonton is that we will have both Dominion and Provincial General Elections this year. It is predicted the provincial will take place some time in June and the Dominion in the fall.

The fact that in the past two years seldom enter upon the fifth year of their regime adds color to the possibility of the rumors.

The question of a national fuel policy for Canada is being brought up in the House of Commons in a series of questions propounded by T. L. Church.

The Elite Cafe is putting on another Fish & Chip Special on Saturday only. Come in and try them, there sure good.

Local News Items

Kindly keep in mind the St. Ambrose Spring Sale April 28th. It is only for a friendly cup of Tea.

The regular monthly meeting of the local Legion will be held in the club rooms on Friday evening of this week at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

Mr. Fleming and daughter Margaret, accompanied by Mr. Pearl Boon, of Maple Creek, spent a few days in town this week guests of Mr. & Mrs. Joe Podesta.

The local S. O. E. lodge will observe St. Georges Day, April 22nd, by having a social gathering in their lodge room in the evening. Invitations are being sent for the event.

J. R. McKay and J. Beridage aged 24 and 20, of Medicine Hat were caught red handed robbing a store in that city. They were both given two years in the penitentiary.

A Football match will be held on the Mod. Hat Football Ground on Good Friday between the Redcliff Brick and Coal team and the Legion. Everybody come and see a real good game. Kick off at 3 P. M.

Residents on Fifth street would like to lay hands on the young Swain who has formed a habit of playing the Wedding March on his car horn about midnight, after delivering his girl at the gate.

Redcliff to Liverpool in 8 days. Empress of Britain 40,000 tons. Will be in service next week. Those contemplating a visit home next year should plan to make the trip in this De Luxe white Flyer of the Atlantic ship now being reserved.

Joe Bell met with a painful accident last Friday while at his work at the Premier Brick plant. He was coupling slave cars when his finger caught in the coupling removing the nail and part of the finger. Joe will be off work for a week or so.

The young men of the town should get together now and start organizing a Baseball team.

Special Services Here On Good Friday

Will be held in St. Ambrose, Gordon Memorial and Brethren Churches.

Arrangements have been made by the pastors of the three churches in town to hold special services on Good Friday. The hours for these services will be found on the regular church notices.

The following letter, signed by the three clergymen concerned, embracing the occasion, has been handed up for publication.

"In making this joint appeal for the better observance of Good Friday, we, the undersigned feel that we are striking a note that should find a response in every Christian heart, irrespective of creed or denomination. The Day of the Cross represents a peculiar call to show thought on the part of all who believe that on the Cross the love of God for mankind reached its highest expression. Should we try to set apart at least an hour of this Great Day for quiet meditation on this supreme fact? Opportunity for such meditation is afforded in the services advertised for this day in our respective Churches, in which, 'The Appeal of the Cross' will be set forth to the men and women for whom the Saviour died."

Signed, Rev. J. L. Cooper, Rev. W. B. Smith, Rev. I. M. Zeigler.

"Masquerade" Coming To Cameo Monday

When a young man's in love he'll even rob his own house to help out the girl he loves.

At least, the hero does that in "Masquerade," which appears at the Cameo next Monday.

A year for young New York bachelor, interrupted by a beautiful girl whom he believes to be a "lady burglar," discovers her ransacking his country home. He gallantly introduces himself as a notorious society bandit and insists on opening the safe for her. Then the trouble starts and to the end of the picture it is full of thrills. Don't miss seeing it.

Advices Farmers Not To Wait For Rain

Says Wheat Should be Sown at Once.

The farmers should sow wheat once and not await the spring rains, advises W. J. Stephen, who for the past eight years has been Field Crops Commissioner of Alberta and is a recognized authority.

Hundreds of prairie farmers have been puzzled over the present situation and have been in doubt as to whether they should sow wheat, lack of sub-soil moisture in many districts never being worse, says Stephen. Many have been cultivating the land, the top eight or ten inches of which is dry and powdery. Thousands are delaying seeding until moisture arrives.

If seeding is delayed until late the wheat will run the danger of frost. Instead of plowing the land that is reasonably clean it should be cultivated now with a duckfoot cultivator, or other implement and wheat sown on the deep side.

The Soldiers Were Right

Men's Angles Were Motion Pictures
Thrown on Sky, Says German Officer

The Angel of Mons really existed, but they were motion pictures thrown upon the screen of foggy, white clouds in Flanders, by cinematographic projecting machines mounted in German airplanes which hovered above the British lines.

This is the rational, though startling explanation offered by Colonel Friedrich Herzenwirth, formerly of the Imperial German Air Service, in a matter that has been the object of considerable research and puzzling during the past sixteen years.

Some of the most eminent psychologists in Europe had settled the question as one of mass-hypnotism and hallucination, while admitting that the visions had been real and sold to the soldiers as their own lives and deaths.

British Tommies in the historic Mons retreat of Aug. 24, 1914, reported the appearance of "angel" men, who seemed to form the rear-guard of the harassed army of the Flanders. Supposedly, these time propaganda quickly seized upon these reports and interpreted the visions as divine intervention.

The Colonel admits that the Germans miscalculated in this respect, for the primary object of the motion picture had been to create a superstitious terror in the enemy's ranks, which was calculated to produce a panic and a refusal on the part of the Allied soldiers to fight upon an enemy, which, by all appearances, enjoyed special supernatural protection.

"What we had not expected on the story told about the late Col. Prentiss, Ingham, writer of the many Buffalo, used as compared with dry foot feeling. When there is an abundant supply of steam-milk with the dry lot feeding the difference will not be marked.

Colonel Herzenwirth, however, explains that the Germans were more successful with their cloud motion pictures on the Russian front in 1915, when the Czar's army was sweeping forward through the Carpathians and threatened to engulf Austria. Instead of Angels, the German planes carried pictures of the Virgin and Child.

The Virgin was shown with uplifted hand, as if motioning to stop the murderous Russian advance. It had been the scene in Flanders, the German planes carrying the magic lanterns with "enormously powerful" lenses lensed low above the enemy lines. A dense snowbank in the sky above the German Army was used as a screen. The airplanes themselves were enveloped in the night, and a prearranged, uninterrupted, drumming in the trenches prevented the Russians from hearing the whirr of the motors.

The picture was allowed to appear only the fraction of a minute here, then on another part of the front. The effect in the Russian ranks, mainly composed of primitives and superstitious peasants, was overwhelming. Entire regiments who had believed the vision fell upon their knees and flung away their rifles, Colonel Herzenwirth says. "If a panic did not seize the entire Russian army it was because atmospheric conditions interrupted flying.

With the French in Picardy and the Champagne region, the German made another miscalculation, however. Instead of taking the figure of a woman that we threw upon the clouds one night as that of the Virgin, the saint protectress of our army, the French promptly recognized Jean d'Arc, he said. Their interpretation was that Joan was in the lead and the trick of the upturned hand which we had thought so clever, came near being our undoing. The French thought that Joan of Arc had beckoned them to come along and finish the Boche right then and there," the Colonel explained.

The German aviators also could only project their pictures for a brief moment at a time, when their machines were at the correct angle from the cloud banks. A moment too early or too late and the picture was blurred or distorted.

The psychologists who advanced the unsupported thesis of large masses of men having become hypnotized simultaneously were correct in one thing; they admitted that the vision had been real and sold to the soldiers. The testimony of the large number of troops who talked seriously about the vision, they had seen could not be doubted, although there was a great deal of incredulous scoffing and punning on the subject in France afterward.

The soldiers were right after all.

How To Write a Story

Would-Be Authors Can Take Choice Of Rules Given

To one of the New York newspapers a correspondent sends what he calls "a few rules" for writing stories. They are as follows:

1. Have something to write about.
2. Write it well.
3. Keep up suspense.
4. Have a good title.
5. Have a good beginning and a smashing ending.
6. Write interesting people.
7. Avoid the drag and dreary.
8. Believe the story yourself.
9. Don't write about authors.
10. Have next copy.
11. Young Americans are favorite characters.
12. Have action spring from character, not vice versa.

Well, these are excellent rules, yet they are not new. They remind us of the story told about the late Col. Prentiss, Ingham, writer of the many Buffalo, used as compared with dry foot feeling. When there is an abundant supply of steam-milk with the dry lot feeding the difference will not be marked.

Brooding Early Chicks

Early Hatched Chicks Require Comfortable Quarters and Artificial Heating

Raising pullets to start laying early in the winter is one ideal the poultryman has always with him. The most effective way of doing this is through the early hatched chicks, and not the least important angle of the problem is the provision of comfortable quarters and artificial heating.

At the Knapwauk Experimental Station, of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, it is found that it takes on an average of 13.5 pounds of coal per day to operate a brooder suitable for one in a house ten by twelve feet in size, which would adequately care for 600 chicks until they are three or four weeks of age. While the actual number that can be housed is around 500 chicks, best results are obtained when not more than 300 are accommodated in this space. On this basis the cost of brooding during the early part of the season runs about $1.35 per 100 chicks.

Pasture Crops For Pigs

Thirty To Forty Per Cent. More Profitable Than Cereals

Getting pigs out on pasture as soon as possible after weaning accomplishes two things:—(1) provides more sanitary conditions than usually prevail in the pens and yards, and thus reduces the possibility of disease and worm infestation; (2) allows the pigs the opportunity of securing some of the protein, minerals and vitamins which may be lacking, especially when skim-milk is not available.

Experiments at the University of Alberta in recent years indicate that one may expect from 30 to 60 per cent more rapid gains and a decrease of from 20 to 30 per cent in the cost of making gains, when pasture is used as compared with dry lot feeding. When there is an abundant supply of skim-milk with the dry lot feeding the difference will not be marked.

WAR ROMANCES

Major James E. Hahn, M.C., D.R.O., soldier, industrialist, author, whose "The Intelligence Service With the Canadian Corps" will be published shortly by Macmillan's. It deals in an interesting fashion with the activities of this important department of the C.E.F. in which so many thrilling romances of war were enacted.

Major Hahn is now an industrialist, having been president of one of the largest radio manufacturers in the British Empire.

Had Prejudice Against 'Phone

Britain In Consequence Takes Low Place Among Users

Among the telephone-using nations Britain takes a low place. They began late. There was an absurd prejudice against the telephone. Even business men disdained it at first, whereas in other countries they jumped at it as a very recent aid to their affairs. Thus, whereas Denmark has a telephone installation for every eleven Dunes, and Sweden one for every twelve Dunes, and Switzerland one for every seventeen Dunes, and Germany one for every twenty-two Dunes, Great Britain has only one for every twenty-six Britons. Of course, America tops the list with one for almost every five people, Canada coming next with one for every seven. Australia and New Zealand are not far behind.

Penalty Was Heavy

Partners of Canada were penalized to the extent of more than $2,000,000 last year as a result of weed seed damage removed from their grain crops marketed during the past year, stated Don. H. Bark, retiring president of the Alberta Seed Growers Association, at the annual meeting in Calgary.

Placard Remedy For Fatigue

Sugar Nerves Physical Energy, Says New York Doctor

The problem of how to refresh the tired business man without sending him to the Ziegfeld Palace has been partly solved by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the "College" University psychological laboratory, who reported a series of experiments to determine the best means of counteracting mental and physical fatigue.

Laird's recommendation is that the weary business man, when asked to sit, "how many hump jumps?" shall reply:

"Three, instead of the usual two, I'm pretty-tired today."

The secret of recovering mental poise and physical energy, according to Laird's experiments, is to eat more sugar. To do so does not recommend that everybody should carry a hump sugar in his vest pocket and chew it whenever possible, but that more sugar should be taken in tea or coffee. He pointed out that Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame football coach, feeds his team shortly by Macmillan's. It deals in an interesting fashion with the activities of this important department of the C.E.F. in which so many thrilling romances of war were enacted.

Had Prejudice Against 'Phone

Britain In Consequence Takes Low Place Among Users

Among the telephone-using nations Britain takes a low place. They began late. There was an absurd prejudice against the telephone. Even business men disdained it at first, whereas in other countries they jumped at it as a very recent aid to their affairs. Thus, whereas Denmark has a telephone installation for every eleven Dunes, and Sweden one for every twelve Dunes, and Switzerland one for every seventeen Dunes, and Germany one for every twenty-two Dunes, Great Britain has only one for every twenty-six Britons. Of course, America tops the list with one for almost every five people, Canada coming next with one for every seven. Australia and New Zealand are not far behind.

Penalty Was Heavy

Partners of Canada were penalized to the extent of more than $2,000,000 last year as a result of weed seed damage removed from their grain crops marketed during the past year, stated Don. H. Bark, retiring president of the Alberta Seed Growers Association, at the annual meeting in Calgary.

Largely a Riddle

Progress Of World In Future Cannot Be Imagined

Dr. H. R. Young, a vice-president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, mentioned at the annual meeting of the society, that the sun is about one million million years old and the earth about five hundred million years. It may also be assumed that the sun's mind is unable to fully comprehend such a space of time; yet if the earth is five thousand million years old, it may also be assumed that it will last five thousand million years more—and then some. For it is incredible that there ever will be a "Zet day" for the cosmic system; that the earth and hundreds of millions of people will be destroyed, either at once, or by a process of gradual extinction extending over a period of a million years or so.

Retains Lead in Passenger Traffic

Canad and Associated Lines
Atlantic Bookings in 1929 Were 265,784

For the twenty consecutive year the Canad and Associated Lines carried, during 1929, a larger number of passengers across the Atlantic than any other steamship line. The group of lines, according to a statement made by Arthur Randless, general passenger manager for Canad and Associated Lines, carried 265,784 passengers.

Statistics of the passenger traffic for last year revealed the fact that Canad and its Associated Lines carried a total of 265,784 passengers on their regular transatlantic sailing lines. Of this large number a total of 60,510 passengers were carried by the Canad service, 20,000 by the Anchor-Donahoe lines, and 45,413 on Canad-Canadian service lines.

Of the total carried by the lines, the Canad Line carried for 208,180, and the Anchor Line, 45,413. In these figures are 5,332 carried on Canad Cruises, 11,264 in the Canad's Havana service for 1929, also 1,500 on the Anchor Line cruises, and several smaller categories, which also the grand total of all passengers carried to 266,197. This total incidentally represented an aggregate increase of 17,000 over the 249,167 carried in 1928.

"A survey of the travel prospects in our various departments, first-class, second-class, cabin, tourist, third-class and fourth-class, leads us to the conclusion that if the present rate of booking is maintained throughout the spring and summer, the Canad Line and its Associated Lines will experience a good year," Mr. Randless stated.

Edmonton Spring Show

Children's Fall Feeding Competition Is Attracting Much Interest

In order to give all children residing in farm homes an opportunity to become conversant with the many special classes put on for them at the Edmonton Spring Show, to be held from April 12 to 15, and particularly the special encouragement given to amateur exhibitors, letters and prizes were sent to every child in the city of Red Deer. A number of teachers have written in that the children have been quite interested and excited, and it is expected that the many changes adopted with an eye to improving the 1930 Children's Fall Feeding competition will result in a largely increased entry.

It has been felt by the directors for some time that where a child is interested in feeding a calf to the point where it can win first prize in the show, it is a good thing that some one else should have an opportunity to win this prize the next year, in this year the first prize, which is a prize to be distributed a little, and in order that all those who have previously won first prizes are barred from again competing. The district prize offered by the Edmonton Stock Yards have also been divided into three prizes for each district, instead of one, which will also give greater encouragement to the amateur exhibitors in these districts which will be the same high quality of livestock as some of the districts which have been settled for a longer time.

The Reindeer Truck

A. E. Fowd, Glace Lake, Ont., has been awarded a Government contract for the organized reindeer truck from Alaska to the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories (to ensure an adequate meat supply to Canada's northern citizens). A. E. Fowd, of the Department of the Interior, now back from the drive, reports that the herd comprises 2,800 females, 807 bucks and more than 300 stags—the last being required to haul some 50 sleds, laden with camp equipment and to supply fresh meat to the herders. A deer is killed in each sled, travelling caravan fashion, with two unharmed stags in the lead breaking the trail.

B.C. Lumber Industry

The records of the Forestry Department indicate that the cut of poles and pilings from the British Columbia forests during 1929 totalled 38,453,489 lineal feet or an increase of 4,900,000 feet over the 1928 output.

Saskatchewan Lumber

Figures relative to the lumber production in Saskatchewan during 1929 reveal that the number of sawmills have increased from 10 to 13 during 1929.

Ready For Poultry Congress

Eggs To Be Exhibited By Canada Are Now In Cold Storage

Eggs and poultry are already in cold storage for exhibition by the Canadian Poultry Pool at the World's Poultry Congress at the Crystal Palace, London, England, in July of this year. Mrs. John Holmes, president of the Saskatchewan, and vice-president of the Canadian Poultry Pool, stated that Canada's interest in the congress was keen, particularly as producers of eggs and poultry last year had slightly exceeded consumption in Canada. This necessitated a foreign market and investigation was proceeding in transit and marketing of the surplus.

At the annual meeting in Edmonton, recently, it was decided that a trial shipment of eggs from British Columbia via the Panama Canal to Britain had been very satisfactory. Five thousand cases of eggs, or 17 car loads, had been sent cold storage and sold in Britain as Canadian eggs, under the trade mark C.P.P.—Canada Poultry Pool.

Asked whether the opening of the Hudson Bay route might help solve the problem of marketing, Mrs. Holmes stated that advantage had been taken of cheaper winter transit in the trial shipment of eggs to Britain via the Panama Canal, and that probably the Hudson Bay route would prove an alternative for Saskatchewan and Manitoba at least.

Comparing the system of British Columbia as egg-producing provinces, Mrs. Holmes declared that the lower temperature of the former was not as much of a drawback as it was proved to be. She added, however, that probably Saskatchewan would have to make more use of poultry keeping, now prevalent in British Columbia. This method had been found more economical for eggs, and it is best for when kept under control. In addition poultry produced under intensive systems is found to be more free from disease, according to the findings of a Winnipeg firm which was chicken.

The system of return of British Columbia was superior to that of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Holmes remarked. In the former provinces eggs were brought by motor-truck system to the assembling station in three days. In Saskatchewan the eggs were transported by rail in about seven days.

Can See Operation On Screen

Invention Used In Paris Works Like Life Perspective
Permitting many doctors and medical students to observe an operation simultaneously, an invention now in use in Paris works like a perspective to enlarge the operation three times on a screen in an adjoining room. In the past only a few persons could be admitted to an operating room. The invention, known as the scalyroscope, is suspended above the operating table, and, through a series of prisms, transfers the scene to a screen, enabling each person to see clearly what is taking place. Observers also hear the surgeon's voice explaining the steps.

Naming Of Creeks

By Old Prospector

Trappers Also Had Land When British Columbia Waterways Were Named

To a reflective person travelling out-of-doors, this threadbare question of creek names is not a trite one. When he ponders on the names given to some of the innumerable streams of the province.

Along the line of the Canadian National River there were more than a few Gold, Silver, Copper, Ruby, and Quartz creeks to draw the prospector's eye. There was even a hand in the christening. These and others of the advance guard settlement named many Salmon and Trout creeks. There are Goat, Kid, Duck, Goose, Sheep (see a shepherd), Pup, Deer, Grizzly, Silver, Bear, Cougar, Whitegoose, Eagle, Martin, Mink, Fish-hawk, Caribou, Wolf and Porcupine creeks. There is even an Octopus creek, and a stream called Greasy Bill. One wonders who this Greasy Bill was, whether he was a prospector, a trapper, a water, Blackwater, Clearwater, Coldwater, Green and Vermilion creeks. There are also many creeks named on one side named Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, by a zealous missionary. Later a trapper named the creek flowing into the river as the opposite side of the stream and named the creek flowing into the river as the opposite side of the stream and named the creek flowing into the river as the opposite side of the stream.

Value Of Game Preservation

Game Statistics Of Saskatchewan Point To Interesting Conclusion

White trapper returns from big game license issued in Saskatchewan for the 1929 shooting season is very much complete, and approximately 20 per cent. of the returns have not been received. It has been roughly estimated that 2,500 big game animals were concentrated in the province last year.

It has also been estimated that 60 per cent. of the animals were brought down in close proximity to game preserves, 17 of which have been completely surrounded by game preserves. Including the many thousands of duck and other game birds shot last season, it has also been estimated that the value in money of all game shot was not less than $1,000,000. If that estimate is anywhere near accurate, the value of game protection in Saskatchewan, for no other than a financial standpoint, is realized.

Guarding The Crops

Laboratories Maintained In West For Control Of Insect Pests

Entomological laboratories are maintained in each of the wheat growing provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The entomological branch, Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, for the carrying on of investigations to determine practical methods for the control of important insect pests.

These laboratories have been established and developed with the necessary equipment and staff as a means of protecting the wheat and other crops against damaging insect enemies.

Good To The Last Drop

New England has never asked for farm relief although it was there that the passing stranger sympathized with the hand who was picked up in a field. To which the latter replied: "Listen, brother, I ain't as poor as I look; I don't own this place."

What Canada Has Done

Dominion Has Given Many Valuable Things To World

The following are a few things that can be verified by existing historical records:

1. Canada built and sent the first steam locomotive across the Atlantic.
2. Canada built and demonstrated the first compound steam engine in the history of the world. The effect of this invention was the doom of the sailing ship as a factor in ocean commerce.

3. Canada built and demonstrated the first submarine telegraph in the history of the world.

4. Canada built and demonstrated the first railway sleeping car in the history of the world.

5. Canada originated the idea of making paper from wood pulp.

6. Canada demonstrated the first practical electric railway in the history of the world.

7. Canada built the world's first electric stove.

8. Canada originated the idea of electro-heating.

9. Canada pioneered in the field of electro-chemistry with the discovery of calcium carbide of Tom Wilson, of Montreal.

10. Canada originated the idea of Standard Time, which has since been adopted by every civilized country in the world.

11. Canada originated the idea of the panoramic camera.

12. Canada originated the idea of the automobile.

13. Canada first isolated helium in commercial quantities.

14. The idea of the telephone originated in Canada and the first long-distance trials of the instrument were made in Canada.

15. Canada gave to the world the idea of the all-electric radio.

Jail To Spare

Huge Decrease In Crime In Great Britain Is Noted

Britain's criminals are an 'class which seems to be travelling on the road which leads to gradual extinction.

The suggestion has been made in parliament that London's two principal prisons—Wandsworth and Pentonville—should be razed and housing areas for the working class substituted.

Malicious jail, which is to be closed soon, is the twenty-seventh in institution of its kind to disappear since 1914. Since that year—memorable as the outbreak of the war—the prison population of the United Kingdom has declined by 70 per cent.

The closure of military barracks arises partly from reduction of the forces and partly because the scheme of armament organization today calls for concentration of troops in their training areas, rather than their housing in different parts of the country. It is doubtful if the great Shire hall barracks will ever be occupied again; that is, unless there should be another war.

Like many similar institutions, the Sheffield barracks were built about the time when industrialization was new, was coming to its full strength in the north of England. Such barracks, for the most part are veritable fortresses, designed then with the idea of providing refuge in times of civil disturbance.

The suggestion has been made in parliament that London's two principal prisons—Wandsworth and Pentonville—should be razed and housing areas for the working class substituted.

Two New Words

The two new words, "enplane" and "deplane," are to be included in the forthcoming edition of the American Standard Dictionary. The origin of the words is impeccable. It is added, according to the editor of the Dictionary, who says that their use in air transport is synonymous to that of "entrain" and "detrain" in railway service.

Minerals Necessary For Cattle

A cow puts 14 pounds of minerals into the milk she produces in a normal producing year. One ton of alfalfa hay contains 160 pounds of minerals, and one pound of alfalfa contains more calcium than 100 pounds of corn.

The longest elephant tusks of which there is authentic record are 11 feet and 5 inches in length, and the pair weigh 292 pounds. They are now in the possession of the New York Zoological Society.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment, but they are not lasting and must be continued. Others cause the bowels to become sluggish, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and grip the bowels, leaving a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only graze the intestines and accumulate in the machinery to become lax.

Get the real relief from the active such as Carter's Little Liver Pills. It gently touches the liver, life starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleaned and constipation is relieved. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and on their way to a real tonic. All drugs 25c and 75c per box.

A Real Economy
New Yorkers pay $140,000,000 a year to ride in the city's 25,000 taxicabs, reports a writer in "World's Work." But huge as that sum seems, the taxicab is a real economy for the New Yorker of the class which would own its own car in smaller cities. On account of high rentals, lack of parking space and traffic congestion, it is estimated that the cost of maintaining an automobile and chauffeur in the city is $5,000 annually.

"The idea?" snapped Grandma.

"That's where I used to put my hired girl!"

"And it's the most comfortable bedroom in the house," retorted Charman. "I'd have taken it myself long ago. But I hadn't wanted to be nearer to you. But let me not worry over that question. Grandma shook her head.

As the key grated in the lock and the door swung back, John Carter uttered an exclamation of pleasure.

"What a peach of a place!"

"Just it," said Charman. "And this room at the side will make a splendid waiting-room. I used to long to use the whole thing for a play house. Aren't these casements windows beautiful—and the mantel, too? You'd know that this was built in the days when carpentry was an art, and a good builder took pride in his work. Joseph Ames carved those fluted columns here, I remember. Wearing grandfathers tell about it when I was a little girl. Let's open the window, Grandma's right. I'll take a lot of work to get it open."

"I'll hire some one to do it. It's much too dirty a job for you."

Charman laughed.

"I'll hire some one to do it. It's much too dirty a job for you."

"It's not easy to hire any one in Wickfield; and many's the time I've tackled worse things than this. If you'll pitch in and help—"

"I'll do every bit of it, while you sit still and give the necessary directions. My fingers itch to begin."

Used Doctor Howe to get his hands with this morning. And don't you dare touch it in my absence. You lady! I won't have you doing jobs like this for me."

"Nevertheless, when the doctor was out of sight, the breakfast dishes disposed of, and luncheon planned, Charman tied up her hand in a big handkerchief, donned a long apron, and went across the driveway to the office."

"I'll make a start," she mused, as she stood for a moment surveying the state of affairs. "The first thing is to clean the top bookshelves. No, no, sweeping the floor with all that dust to come down upon it! However, she had hardly reached the top of the ladder when a shadow fell across the doorway and some one said:

"What in thunder are you doing here?"

"Gracious! How you scared me!"

The girl turned around and regarded the caller from her perch. "Where'd you come from, Jim, this time of day?"

"As Jim Bennett came near Charman saw at once that he was wearing a new suit of rather better cut than usual, and that his shoes were polished to the 'ninth' degree."

"You look elegant as well as prosperous," she added. "Lend me a helping hand, Jim, so I can descend gracefully."

Jim grinned, and stretched out the hand originally intended for his bag, flashing a trifle at Charman, on solid ground again, looked up at him, "To see if you were going to the strawberry festival tonight. If you are, I'll stop for you with the car as I go along."

"Disconcerting smile curved the girl's lips as she replied: 'That's thoughtful of you, Jimmy, but you aren't backer because I—'

"Bother!" he exploded. "Who said I was a bother?"

Charman's smile broadened to a laugh.

"Well, you see, I promised Doctor Carter to let him know how I began, and now you see. That's a stunning suit, Jimmy. You look like a 'squire'!"

Jim flushed again, angrily this time.

"Look here, Charman," he began hotly. "If you're mad because I took Clara Darling to that so-called and the picnic at the Falls, why I don't mind saying—"

"Mad!" broke in Charman. "Why on earth should I be mad, I'd like to ask?"

Jim's color was fast becoming apoplectic.

"Well, other times I've always taken you, but Clara was visiting here, and Mother—"

"Yes, I see," said Charman, coming to his senses.

To his rescue. "I see perfectly. Now run along, Jim, and let me get to work. Doctor Carter's going to use this for an office. Won't it be darling? Not darling the Clara, but—"

"Have you gone crazy?" Jim interrupted again. "And do you mean to say that lady-bodied fellow is your friend?"

"On the contrary," explained Charman. "He's a good fellow, and I thought I'd make a start. However, if you keep me talking much longer—"

"Oh, I'll clear out," said Jim. "It's evident that I'm not wanted. And—about tonight—I guess I won't go after all."

Charman laid a tempting hand upon his arm.

"Don't be an idiot, Jim. Of course you'll go. Tell me, is Miss Darling going to stay all summer?"

The young man ignored the question as he shook off her hand roughly and strode away. For a moment Charman's mind was wandering, knowing by the right set of his shoulders that he was "all right up," as Grandma would put it.

"Dear old Jimmy," she sighed, as she mounted the ladder again and lifted a "heavy" volume. "I'm wicked to wish you just for being so obedient son. And you are a dear, most of the time. You're an dependable as the lower circle, or would be if your mother would give you half a chance. You looked fine in that suit, too—really handsome. I wonder if Clara Darling made you buy it!—Why, Jim! did you forget something?"

"She was back in the doorway, looking up at her."

"Yep," he replied brightly, forgetting his manners. "He took a step nearer and said, hesitating, 'I—I just wanted to see if I couldn't help. I've got a half day off. This is the most of work for me, Charman. I've got these heavy books. Let me get up and hand 'em down to you.'"

His coat was off before Charman could utter her touched surprise.

"You'd do no such thing! You'd simply run to let him know how I began, and now you see. That's a stunning suit, Jimmy. You look like a 'squire'!"

Jim flushed again, angrily this time.

"Look here, Charman," he began hotly. "If you're mad because I took Clara Darling to that so-called and the picnic at the Falls, why I don't mind saying—"

"Mad!" broke in Charman. "Why on earth should I be mad, I'd like to ask?"

Jim's color was fast becoming apoplectic.

"Well, other times I've always taken you, but Clara was visiting here, and Mother—"

"Yes, I see," said Charman, coming to his senses.

"What a nut-between friends?" asked Jim, looking around for a clean spot to lay his coat. He laughed, and was, suddenly, the old Jim who had been his life-long comrade. She said, genuine affection prompting the words: "Jim, you're a trump. I ought not to let you, but these books are heavy—and here, put on this linen duster and roll up your sleeves. Hand me the top books first, and go slowly for I have to take them off. I'll admit a man about the place is a great thing."

"If you want one—permanently," he began from the top of the ladder, when a step sounded on the side porch. "Indeed, I have! Jim Bennett was good enough to offer his assistance in lifting down those heavy books. Have you been very good introduced? This is Doctor Carter, my new boarder. Jim's an old hand of mine, Doctor. He used to carry my books to school for me and fight my battles. You ought to be friends."

The young man on the step ladder looked the reverse of friendly at just that moment, but he descended, and reluctantly gripped the hand which the doctor had extended.

"I was only giving Charman a little help," he explained, somewhat breathlessly; and added, a halfhearted note creeping into his voice, "this is no sort of work for a girl, it seems to me."

"You're right, Miss Davis will tell you that I told her not to touch it. I expected to go with Doctor Howe this morning, but when I told him of this scheme for an office he gave me the day off. It thought it a great idea, and I'll say I'm in luck! I got some old clothes and he took in a jiffy to pitch in."

"Waver!" began Jim, removing the duster and reaching for his neatly folded coat, "you won't need me now so I'll run along. I—suppose you use an awful lot of that fellow, Charman?"

Charman was obliged to conceal a smile of triumph at this evidence that Miss Davis was not contemptible.

"I eat three meals a day with him," he answered. "Later on, if I get the chance, he'll have his dinners at the hotel."

"It makes me hot—your cooking means for him," confessed Jim, as he slipped into his coat.

"What nonsense!" laughed Charman. "Can't a body take a boarder without making you look like a fool?"

"Indeed? Wipe that scowl off, Jim. It's not becoming. You're ever so much better when you smile. After if you've got time, run in and speak to Doctor Howe? You'll see she's long sitting there so long, and why not stop in tonight and go along to the festival with us, Jimmy? I'd like to have you, honest injun, cross my throat and hope to die, as we used to say."

This was reward of merit for his offered help; but Jim answered, a little caustic twist to his lips that was something new: "Seems to me I've heard somewhere that there's a crowd. Thanks, my dear, but I know enough not to butt in where I'm not wanted."

"As far as I'm concerned," began Charman, knowing that down inside he was really hurt, but John Carter's untimely entrance interrupted what was intended for a soothing speech, and with a mothered "Damn," that wasn't really so mothered it should have been, Jim took his departure.

The doctor gave vent to an expressive whistle as he watched the young man's muscular figure move swiftly across the gravel driveway.

"Your friend seems not to like me," he ventured roughly.

"Give him time," smiled Charman. "He's slightly irritated this morning because he'd planned to escort me to the strawberry festival tonight and you've cut him out."

"He is, I take it, the man who has recently been enamored of a green hat."

"The same," admitted Charman, showing a bewitching dimple. "But now let's get to work. If you'll take Mrs. Bennett's place on the ladder we can accomplish wonders before I have to start dinner."

KEEP THEM HAPPY BY KEEPING THEM WELL

It is natural for children to be happy, active and full of fun. When they are fretful, fussy and inclined to play you may feel sure something is wrong. Almost always there is something ill in the digestive tract.

It is to meet the need for an absolute cure of childhood ailments that Baby's Own Tablets have been developed. They gently regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent constipation and indigestion; break up colds and similar fevers and prevent troubling pains. Concerning them Mrs. W. B. Forsyth, Dover, N.H., writes: "I would not be without Baby's Own Tablets as I know of nothing to equal them for fretful, fussy babies who are troubled with colds or sour stomachs."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Needless Pain!

People are often too impatient with pain, suffering when there is no need to rush. Shipping with a head that throbs. Why not pause a moment and let the pain pass?

And Aspirin would bring them immediate relief.

The best time to take Aspirin is in the morning, when you first feel the pain. Why postpone relief until the pain has reached its height? Why not take Aspirin at once, ending a new throbbing headache and the pains of neuritis, arthritis, rheumatism, etc.

You can always count on its quick relief. It is the only pain reliever that resuscitates a doctor as to its cause.
